

RESEARCH SEMINAR

EDWARDS
SCHOOL OF BUSINESS
UNIVERSITY OF SASKATCHEWAN

November 13th
12:00pm-12:45pm

Virtual: Teams

Erica Carleton & Megan Walsh
Assistant Professors of Organizational
Behaviour and Human Resource Management

Gender & Leadership

Abstract: One ongoing issue that contributes to the underrepresentation of women in leadership roles is stereotype threat. Stereotype threat is the concern of confirming or being reduced to a negative stereotype about one's group and has been shown to reduce women's leadership aspirations. In our presentation we will discuss two studies that we have conducted to examine the relationships between experiences of stereotype threat, well-being, and women's motivation to lead.

Connect with us using Microsoft Teams!

Click here to join the research seminar talk

TOGETHER